7 Own answers, but students should base their diary entry on the following section and translate 'herself', 'her' etc. into 'myself' and 'my'.

Elinor suffered when he went, but she controlled her feelings. She was not like Marianne after Willoughby left. Her life seemed to continue as normal. As soon as Edward was out of the house she began a new drawing. She did not leave the room when her family talked about Edward. She did not stay by herself, or leave the house to be alone. She slept well every night.

'If I am calm,' she thought, 'then my mother and sisters will not worry about me.' She was very unhappy, but she kept her unhappiness a secret from her family. She thought about Edward a lot, and tried to understand his behaviour.
